PRESIDENT WRITES

Dear Fellows, Members and Associates,

In the present issue of our journal, the case report of fungating mass from carcinoma of the ovary has been published. It is very disturbing that with all the development and progress in medicine we still come across such advanced cases. I appeal to the medical fraternity to wake up to this challenge. Our fellows in the urban tertiary care hospitals should extend helping hand to the rural medical fraternity by arranging continuing medical education programs and hands-on training on a regular basis under the aegis of International Medical Sciences Academy, so that early detection and prevention of progression of such cases can be achieved.

I call upon all the chapters of our academy and fellows/members to give their best so that we can really change the face of healthcare delivery in our country on a uniform basis.
